2016 Interface: Tips, Tools, and Timesavers

Lessons learned by instructors combining active learning with technology

“Learning is not a spectator sport. Students do not learn much just by sitting in class listening to teachers, memorizing prepackaged assignments, and spitting out answers.”

Chickering, Gamson, & Poulsen, 1987

Who: Faculty, Staff and Teaching Assistants from across the campus

What: Share ideas, network, and be inspired!

When: April 21, 2016 9:00 a.m. to 3:15 p.m.

Where: Harrell Medical Education Building North Learning Studio

Win: iPad mini drawings!

The Spring 2016 Interface will be an interactive event highlighting low- and high-technology learning tools. Faculty presenters will share experiences and time-saving tips from their use of technology in teaching to support active learning methods. Try out the tools others have used to transform the teaching and learning experience. Be inspired by your colleagues from different disciplines across campus.
Continental breakfast and lunch will be provided. Graduate Assistants are welcome.

Recordings of the keynote presentations and poster session tip sheets will be made available through teach.ufl.edu.
